GOOD DAY!

I am Nicko Lander Rosales Milan, a graduate with a Bachelor of Science in Information Technology. I am reaching out to express my strong interest in joining your team, as I believe my skills and experience align well with your needs and could significantly benefit your company.

With over seven months of experience in freelancing, I have worked extensively with various tools and frameworks essential for front-end development, including VS Code, MongoDB Compass, Next.js, and Express.js. My previous freelance role involved building web applications, specifically for students working on capstone and thesis projects. In that role, I contributed as a front-end developer, focusing on UI design using tools like HTML, CSS, TypeScript, JavaScript, and Tailwind CSS. Additionally, I utilized Adobe XD and Figma to ensure well-structured, user-friendly interfaces.

In terms of backend knowledge, I have experience with Java and Python and have also worked with tools like Android Studio, Google Colab, and Mendeley Data, specifically for handling datasets in mobile applications. My skills in web development are complemented by my experience with SEO, optimizing web pages to ensure that they perform well in search engines.

I am motivated by the opportunity to further develop my programming skills within a company known for its innovation and dedication to high standards. I am detail-oriented and highly productive, enabling me to deliver quality work efficiently. My curiosity and commitment to continuous improvement drive me to consistently expand my skills and stay updated with the latest industry practices.
